FurreverGrateful Rescue Thanks Michelle very sweet of you (and Susanne - thank U so much for the donation!!!) He's temporarily in a cage, but will need a long term foster or adopter if he survives...He's going to another vet later today, we'll know more...Unfortunately, the woman who found him saw the tumor, and wasn't able to catch him before it burst so he's in critical condition.

11/25/14 - Sandy is the true story of hope, faith and the will to fight even when you've been kicked to the ground & despite the odds! Sandy is still going strong despite his 2nd surgery which removed a baseball's size worth of tissue! His stitches were removed Sunday evening and as you can see, the 2nd surgery went well so much so you can see his original face shape! Happy to report that he is eating heartily and in the process of gaining weight so he can surmount the next and hopefully final surgery!

We truly need your continued positive thoughts, support, well wishes and prayers to bless Sandy so that this 3rd surgery will remove all of the cancerous tissue with the help of chemotherapy!

Thank you for joining us on Sandy's journey to a happy, cancer free life! For ways to donate to Sandy's ongoing medical care, please see below!

Sandy 12/16/14 Update: Sandy is preparing for his 3rd (and hopefully) final eye surgery confirmed for Sunday, 12/21/14! Sandy must surmount several challenges a 3rd time to make it through - he must survive the complex surgery and blood loss, survive the overnight post-surgery period, then heal and recover well afterwards. Please hope and pray for sweet Sandy and that Dr. Whitney's hands and expertise can remove the cancer cells in full. He's almost there, we can see the light at the end of the tunnel!!!! Thank you to everyone who has supported Sandy throughout this journey to TEAM SANDY!!!

If you'd like to help with Sandy's ongoing medical care and upcoming surgery, please see donate options below :)

The big day is here!!! Sandy's 3rd surgery is close to getting started this morning! Please keep him and Dr. Whitney in your thoughts and prayers to locate the remaining cancer cells and for Sandy to survive the blood loss and recovery period, so Sandy can move on with his life, soon to be cancer free!!!

Thanks to everyone for their support on this journey as we do our best to heal Sandy!!!
